ERNEST MRAZEK
Whitney Pier Business Owner

Ernie Mrazek took entrepreneurship to heart as a very young man. In the early to mid-30s, he established Rural Radio Service on Horne's Road, Mira - where his parents and siblings had eventually settled, after immigrating to Canada in the post-war years. He later moved to Whitney Pier and worked for a time at the steel plant; however, his passion and interest in electronics led him to re-establishing his business. In the early 40s, he became a Whitney Pier business owner, operating at various Victoria Road addresses. In keeping with growing electronics field of the time, he provided sales and service opportunities involving home and car radios, sound equipment, recordings, and eventually, in the early 50s, to include television. His sudden death in 1959 at the age of 47 culminated in the closure of his business.
